Consecutive Master Studies

- Master programs at RWTH Aachen are consecutive
- Therefore applications will be evaluated formally (recognition of university, accredited bachelor studies)
- Subsequently, applications will be evaluated regarding their content (subject-specific)

The Subject-Specific Evaluation: Example „Mechanical Engineering“

RWTH - BSc Mechanical Eng.		My - Bachelor
Mathematics: 17 CP	→	Mathematics: 12 CP	- 5
Technical Drawing & CAD: 4 CP		Technical Drawing & CAD: 4 CP	0
Machine Elements: 9 CP	→	Machine Elements: 10 CP	0
Mechanics: 18 CP		Mechanics: 18 CP	0
Control Engineering: 6 CP		Control Engineering: 6 CP	0
Fluid Mechanics: 6 CP	→	Fluid Mechanics: 3 CP	- 3
Thermodynamics: 7 CP	→	Thermodynamics: 4 CP	- 3
Thermal and Material Transfer: 6 CP		Thermal and Material Transfer: 6 CP	0
Materials Science: 8 CP	→	Materials Science: 0 CP	- 8
			- 19

Result of the Subject-Specific Evaluation

- Case 1: Total = 0 CP
→ admission without extra courses
- Case 2: Total ≤ 30 CP
→ admission with extra courses
- Case 3: Total ≥ 30 CP
→ rejection of the application

Amount of missing CP varies from subject to subject!

Questions about the Subject-Specific Evaluation

- What can I do in case I am rejected and I still would like to study at RWTH Aachen University?

The only way is to apply for a bachelor. Take the missing courses and then apply for entry into the Master's degree program again.

- When do I need to take the extra courses?

Usually before you can register for your master thesis. It's not required to take them before the enrollment!

- Can I object to a rejection or to extra courses?

Essentially no. However, the examination boards usually review applications if the objection contains a sensible argument or if there is additional information that was not available at the time of the evaluation.

Departmental Advisors

Departmental advisors help with

- questions on course contents
- planning the studies
- recognition of bachelor courses
- questions on extra courses

Where can I find the departmental advisors?

4. Doctoral Studies

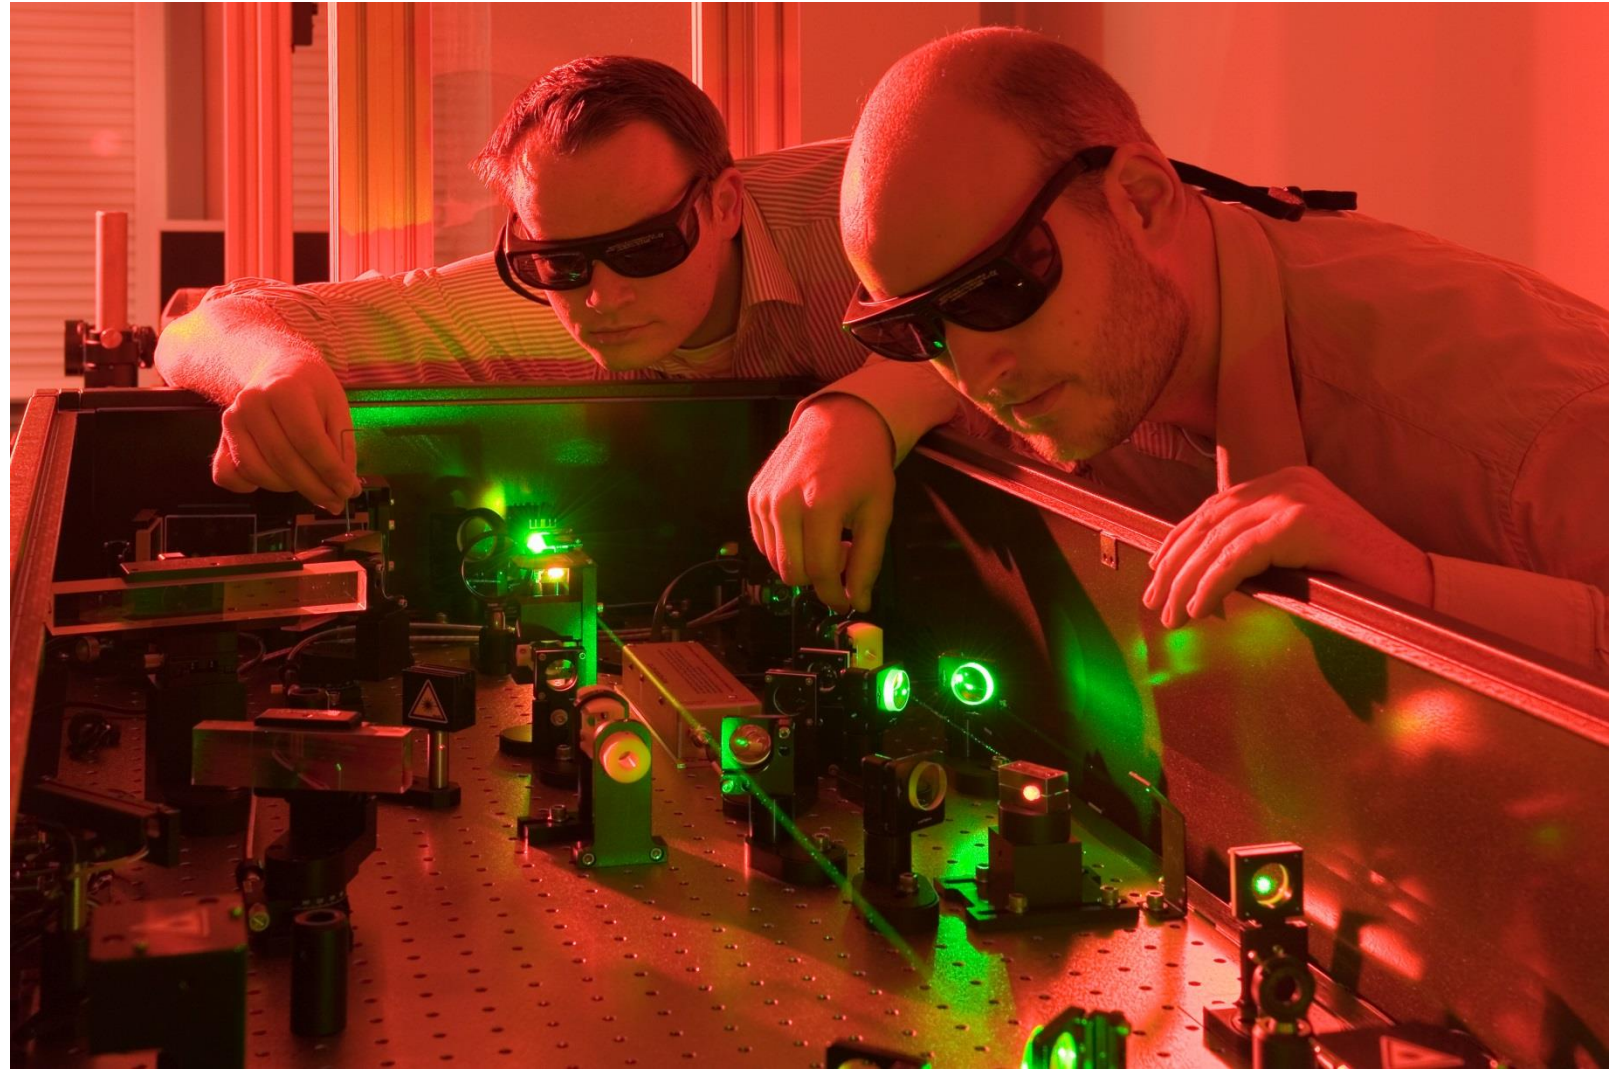

General Information

- few structured Phd courses, rather supervision of an independent scientific thesis by an academic supervisor
- duration of 3 to 5 years
- funding usually by own resources, employment as a doctoral student, or scholarship
- requirements:
 - consecutive master or comparable degree
 - usually above-average grades

How to Find a Supervisor?

- recommendation by former professors or lecturers
- application for a job with the opportunity to do a PhD through the online job platform
- direct application at a supervisor (preferably in writing and customized)

Parallel Application Processes and Deadlines

- application for admission to Doctoral Studies at the Doctoral Committee of the faculty
- application for a place of study through RWTHOnline
- for summer term, applications and enrollments are possible between 1st February and 30th June
- for winter term, applications and enrollments are possible between 1st August and 15th December
